China-Tibet And 19th Party Congress

November 8, 2017

Soon after the 19th Party Congress (October 18 - 24, 2017) held in Beijing, the Chinese-appointed 11th Panchen Lama said that the 19th National Congress of the Communist Party of China (CPC) could benefit Buddhism and called on all Buddhists to be grateful to the homeland. Tibet.cn quoted Panchen Lama Bainqen Erdini Qoigyijabu on November 8, 2017, as saying at the opening ceremony for a seminar on interpreting Tibetan Buddhist doctrine in Beijing on November 6, that 'Xi Jinping Thought on Socialism with Chinese Characteristics for a New Era' could be a guiding light for Buddhism in adapting to socialism with Chinese characteristics and continuing to develop. He said the interpretation of Tibetan Buddhist doctrine should also include consolidating its current achievements and respecting its traditions, while being aware of the developments and the needs of Tibetan areas, or the whole of China. He said that Buddhists should be grateful for the nation, for life, for their parents, and the three jewels - Buddha, the Dharma, and the Sangha - and return the offerings of the grace of the homeland and life. He added that interpreting doctrine involves "digging and promoting what benefits social harmony, development, health, and civilization in the religious doctrine, morality and culture."

(Comment: China's official news agency Xinhua said the Panchen Lama is currently Vice President of the Buddhist Association of China and a member of the Standing Committee of the Chinese People's Political Consultative Conference (CPPCC) National Committee.)

Panchen Lama inaugurates the Seventh Annual Seminar on Tibetan Buddhist Doctrine Interpretation

November 2017

The Chinese appointed Panchen Lama Gyaltzen Norbu, inaugurated the seventh Annual Seminar on Tibetan Buddhist Doctrine Interpretation at Tibetan Buddhism College of China in Beijing on November 06, 2017. In his keynote speech, the Chinese appointed Panchen Lama recalled a meeting that he had with Xi Jinping on June 10, 2015 whereby the General Secretary pointed out the "need to actively engage in the interpretation of Tibetan Buddhist doctrine, carrying forward the positive spirits in Tibetan Buddhism, such as propagating the good and repress the bad, equality and tolerance, and helping the poor and people in need" The Panchen Lama reportedly told the participants of 200 people encompassing of "Scholars Han Buddhist monasteries, religious research institutions, representatives from Buddhist Institutes and monasteries" from Tibet and Tibetan areas of Qinghai, Gansu, Sichuan and Yunnan Province that the Buddhist monks should carry Buddhist traditions of patriotism and uphold national ethnic unity.

United Front Activity

As part of activities sponsored by the Party's United Front Work Department, meetings were organised to propagate the teachings and spirit of the 19th Party Congress among Tibetans living in frontier areas and to help them appreciate the Party's contributions to improving their standard of life. In the end of October and early November, the officers and soldiers of the Tibetan border police station in Zanda County, Ali District of Tibet, conducted a 'grand' activity to propagate the 19th Party Congress among the herder masses in the area. One 73-year old man living in Dhaba said that "Now living conditions are getting better. In the past, we had enough to eat, not to eat, wear and tear, and get sick. The government can also reimburse most of the medical expenses. I am very satisfied with the present life." He also told the guards that "In the past two years, the village has developed very fast, a great change has taken place since the past year." He added that he is looking forward when the Chinese dream of building a moderately prosperous society will be accomplished. He also said that during 2000 there were no roads and no facilities and "we used to travel for days to reach Xinjiang which is 1400 km away, but now national highway no: 219 has been constructed in Tibet and there is an airport in Ali district". Saying he has personally witnessed the development, he observed, "our district has now become prosperous".

On October 31, the Vice Chairman of the Standing Committee of the Tibet Autonomous Region Party Committee and Chief Director of Poverty Alleviation Headquarters Luo Budunzhu convened the 13th anti-poverty headquarters meeting. The meeting studied and discussed the "Demonstration Request for Recognition of Rural Villages in Depressed Poverty Counties", the "Implementing Opinions on Supporting Poverty Alleviation in Poverty stricken areas," the "Outline report of Tibet's Poverty Alleviation from Poverty stricken Areas" in the Tibet Autonomous Region. Luo Budunzhu stressed the need to adhere to the people-centered development thinking and earnestly grasp the first priority of getting rid of poverty and tackling the overall situation of economic and social development in an all-out way to speed up the overall economic and social development of the in-depth poverty-stricken areas in Tibet.

Luo Budunzhu also said at the conference that 6739 households in five impoverished counties and 23,285 poor people were lifted out of poverty in 2016, and that the incidence of poverty had dropped below 3%. As of the end of September 2017, the Tibet Autonomous Region has invested a total of more than 20 billion yuan (RMB) in various types of financial agriculture-related funds and 10 billion yuan in a special fund for industrial poverty alleviation, directly bringing 92,000 people out of poverty. He added that education aid is also intensifying and Tibet has started free secondary vocational education through special enrollment of children of impoverished families and "children born after year 2000" to receive free education to stop inter-generational transmission of poverty.

Meeting to discuss development of Yumai Village

November 10, 2017

TAR Standing Committee Member and Executive Vice Chairman of TAR People's Government Jiang Jie convened a meeting on November 7, 2017 to discuss the development of Yumai village of Lhunze County of Lhoka (Ch: Shannan).

The meeting discussed General Secretary Xi Jinping's reply to a letter sent by two Tibetan sisters, Dolkar and Yangzom, who have been living in the village with their family since 1979 as herders. Xi Jinping acknowledged the family's efforts to safeguard the territory and thanked them for the loyalty and contributions they have made in the border area. The village, with 32 inhabitants, is situated on the India-China border across Arunachal Pradesh. Xi Jinping said, "Without peace in the territory, there will be no peaceful lives for millions of families." He hoped that this case would motivate more herders to put down roots in the border area "like Kalsang flowers and become guardians of the Chinese territory and constructors of a happy hometown.

The meeting also discussed promoting developmental construction in Yumai village so as to protect it from Indian invasion as claimed by the family in their letter. The officials at the meeting were told to quickly formulate plans, strengthen organizational leadership and monitor progress.

Preliminary survey for an underground Tibet-Nepal OBOR railway line concluded

November 14, 2017

A railway line linking Tibet with Nepal has begun taking concrete shape with the two sides having concluded a preliminary study. The cross-border 100-km railway will connect Kathmandu and Tibet's border town of Kerung (Tibetan: Kyirong or Kyidrong).

A Chinese delegation including experts on high-altitude railway technology and Nepali engineers jointly concluded that the railway would be underground and cost around Nepalese Rs 275 billion. It said a 23-member Chinese delegation led by Zheng Jian, Deputy Administrator (Vice Minister), of China's National Railway Administration, concluded a five-day study tour on November 10. The report said about 85 percent of the railroad will be underground and will pass beneath the hills from Kerung, which is at an altitude of 4000 metres, to Kathmandu (1400 metres).

The report quoted Ananta Acharya, Director General of Nepal's Department of Railway, as saying, "This was a basic research of the topology and geography. Both sides will later reach an agreement for carrying out a feasibility study." The report said the study was part of the One Belt One Road (OBOR) agreement, which the government of Nepal had signed with China in May. Acharya was quoted as saying, "The Chinese team is excited to proceed with the project and we have expressed our commitment to take the project ahead."

Once the railroad is complete, trains from Kyirong will operate at speeds of 120 km per hour and reach Kathmandu in less than an hour.
